CHRISTMAS.

Christmas means to us a season of rejoicing. It has come down to us through the ages, since Christ was born in the little city of Bethlehem and the angels sang around His manger. "Peace on earth good will to men."

We have caught the festive spirit, and join in our grateful and harmonious strain, and sing the sweet anthem over and over again until our hearts are filled with joy and gladness. To those who are boundlessly supplied with this world's goods, this is a season of gladness, but in the homes where poverty lurks, what find we there--sorrow and distress. What would appeal more to a gentle, sympathetic heart than a mother in a home of poverty now. Picture her with her little ones clinging to her skirts, prattling in their innocent childish fashion about Santa Claus, and what he will bring them, she shudders at every word for she knows only too well there will be no visit from Santa Claus in their home. See her distress when she views the little stockings hung in a row, when she watches the little eager faces peering in, only to turn away with a look of disappointment and wander away on an inquiring look at mother, as if they expect her to explain. There are just such homes in our midst today and God grant that our mothers may find them. This is a season of giving and may every good citizen in our dear old town, feel it his or her duty to give their mite to mitigate the suffering, and advance the happiness of the less fortunate, for what are we that we should prosper more than they, and in giving we increase our own happiness ten fold. As I write, scenes of my childhood come before my vision. I look back over the vista of years and recall my home life. Such a sweet, simple life it was away from the mad rush, and wild tumult of the city's din and roar, care free and untrammelled by the laws of society, with my dear mother and father, sisters and brothers, we lived a quiet peaceful life in the dear old home. Many years have passed and most of them are a sleep in the silent city, yet tonight they seem strangely near to me; it seems they have come from the silence and I can hear their voices and see their smiling faces getting ready for Christmas. What great preparations were made in that dear old home. Mother was busy for weeks ahead of time, and when the day dawned at last the pantry fairly groaned with good things too numerous to mention. And mothers mince meat pie, My! but it was good, I have never since tasted any to equal it. Evergreen was twined in profusion about the walls interspersed with clusters of bright holly, then the Christmas tree in the old fashioned parlor (for mother would always have a Christmas tree) fairly bent with its beautiful trimmings. Those who had married and made homes for themselves were invited back to the home nest, and father and mother looked on with smiling faces, while the children and grandchildren, made the old walls ring with their laughter and song. Christmas means so much to the little innocent child, to the maid, to the youth, but to those who have almost reached the last mile stone it means nothing. It awakens sad memories, and paints vivid pictures of vanished days. The empty cradle, the broken toy, the vacant chair by the fireside, the lonely snow covered grave, are all suggestive of brighter days when shadows now creep in. They are only waiting for the sound of the boatman's voice, listening for the grating of the boat upon the sands, waiting for the invitation to step in and be conveyed across the silent stream, to the great beyond, to the celestial city from which no weary traveler ever returns. I wish a happy Christmas and when the day is ended and the curtain is drawn may we have that peace of mind that the world cannot give nor take away.

on Berry's daughter. About one year ago, in an altercation, Jenkins shot Berry in the mouth with a pistol, wounding him very badly, tearing out several teeth, Jenkins claiming that it was done in self-defense.

DEMOCRATIC POSSIBILITIES.

Disclaiming for a second time any intention of himself becoming a presidential candidate in 1912, William J. Bryan, in the issue of his Commoner yesterday, suggests 4 democratic possibilities--Joseph W. Folk, Mayor Gaynor, of New York; Gov. Harmon, of Ohio, and Gov.-elect Wilson of New Jersey, in the order named. He makes no choice among the four, but publishes their records as follows:

"Folk was an active supporter of Bryan and Sewell in 1896, and has supported the democratic national ticket in all the campaigns since."

"Mayor Gaynor, in 1896, was one of the most prominent democrats in the east who stood up for the party creed and ticket, and he has been faithful ever since."

"Gov. Harmon, then a member of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, did not vote in 1896, but in 1900 presided at Mr. Bryan's meeting at Cincinnati."

"While by intimation classing Woodrow Wilson as a bolter in 1896, Bryan praises him for his attitude in the contest for the New Jersey senatorship."

AWFUL PAINS FULLY DESCRIBED

A Lady of Pizarro Tells Story of Awful Suffering That Cardui Finally Relieved.

Pizarro, Va.--"I suffered for several years," writes Mrs. Dorna A. Smith, "with that awful backache and the bearing down sensations, so fully described in your book."

"I tried doctors and other medicines and found little relief, until I was induced to try Wine of Cardui, when I found instant relief and today I can heartily recommend Cardui to all suffering women and think there is no other as good."

In some instances, Cardui gives instant relief; in others, it may take a little time. But in all cases of female trouble Cardui can be depended on to be of benefit, as it is a specific remedy for women and acts in a curative way on the womanly organs.

As a general tonic for women, to build up your strength, improve your appetite, bring back rosy cheeks and make you look and feel young and happy, nothing you can find will do so much for you as Cardui.

Your druggist has it.

N. B.--Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.
